utilitarian purposes, but it is also of scientific interest, being a very rare variety of wood. The single specimen introduced having flourished in its new habitat, a number of young plants were propagated and planted on a piece of land on the hill-side. This piece of land being subsequently required for the service of the reservoir
of the new water-works, the whole of the young trees were destroyed
before the Botanical Department had any opportunity of dealing with them. Possibly, had notice been given, they might have been transplanted; that, at all events, is the inference which Mr. Ford would draw from Mr. Forn's report.

This is an instance of how different departments work at cross-purposes, and how the colony's money is wasted. The affair in itself is of trifling importance, but as illustrative of the Governmental system it is as eloquent as the quarrel of a few years ago between the Regiments-General and the Police Departments.

ROBBERY FROM THE PERSON.

Chu Kam Che was charged, on the information of Inspector Matheson, with embezzling $67,
the property of Li Ping Kwong, on the 18th

June. Prisoner pleaded not guilty.

The facts were stated by the Attorney-General,
who said that defendant had been engaged as a bill collector by prosecutor. He had been sent out to different firms to collect several small bills for printing, but had returned without the money, saying that they could not pay just then. Li Ping Kwong, the owner of the shop, went to the firm and found out that defendant had received seven dollars of money from them, amounting in all to $37.

The jury found the prisoner guilty.

Sentence was postponed.

MAIL SUPPLEMENT TO THE HONGKONG DAILY PRESS.

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, JULY 19TH, 1888.

THE HEALTH OF THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY OF HONGKONG.

The remarks we have made recently on the deterioration of the health of the British and Foreign community of Hongkong are more than confirmed by the report of the Colonial Surgeon for last year. Dr. AYRES says the number and percentage of deaths are the highest recorded during the last ten years, the number being 138, as compared with 103 in 1886 and 99 in 1885, and the percentage, 4.54, nearly doubling the average of the previous ten years. This is much higher than the figures of the Sanitary Board, which make the rate per thousand for the British and Foreign Community 33.6. The differences between this and the 45.4 of the Colonial Surgeon's report is due presumably to the fact that Dr. Ayres has excluded from the "European and American" community some portions of the population included by the Sanitary Board under the head of "British and Foreign." The mortality from small-pox, Dr. Ayres says, in no way accounts for the increased death rate. The deaths from diseases which may be caused by Bith poison, though more numerous than in 1886 amongst the European community, are not above the average of previous years, from which it would seem that the increase in the death rate is not due to more insanitary conditions than formerly, a conclusion which is strengthened by the "great falling off in the deaths amongst the Chinese from preventable causes." The remarks of Dr. Ayres on the good effect of the work done by the Sanitary Board in this direction are most satisfactory. The cause of the increased death rate amongst the Europeans must therefore be sought in some other direction.

THE POSITION OF THE GOVERNMENT.

In our issue of Monday we drew attention to a passage in the report of the Colonial Surgeon for last year, in which reference was made to the increased mortality amongst the European and American community of Hongkong. The China Mail had previously endeavoured to show that there had been a very small increase, and that what little there had been was due to the small-pox epidemic which broke out towards the end of the year. Dr. Ayres writes:—"The number and percentage" [of deaths amongst the European and American residents] "are the highest ever recorded, although during the year previous we had a slight cholera epidemic. In 1887 small-pox became epidemic, but the mortality from this disease in no way accounts for the increased death rate. In 1887 the deaths were 138 as compared with 103 in 1886 and 99 in 1885. The percentage of deaths to the population is 4.54, nearly doubling the average of the previous years." On this the China Mail writes:—"A slight error which has slipped into Dr. Ayres' report has led our morning contemporaries to crack again about the deterioration of the health of the British and foreign community in Hongkong. Had the writer taken the trouble to compare the tables on which the paragraph in Dr. Ayres' report is based he would at once have seen the mistake. But he seems to have been anxious to get any sort of support to his absurd conclusions that he never thought of verifying his figures. The number of deaths among the European and American residents (estimated to number 3,040) was 103, not 138—last year, as compared with 103 in 1886 and 99 in 1885. During the months of November and December last year 7 deaths occurred among the British and Foreign community from small-pox, which more than accounts for the excess over 1886." It is quite true that, taking Dr. Ayres' report as sufficiently good evidence of the contents of the tables he attached to the report, we did not take the trouble to verify the figures. On referring to the table in question we find that the deaths are set down, as stated by our contemporaries, at 103 and the percentage at 3.55. There is, therefore, a discrepancy between the figures given in the report and those given in the table. Instead of calling this "a slight error," as our contemporaries do, we should be disposed to call it a very gross error indeed, displaying culpable negligence. Were it not that our contemporaries, in reproducing the Colonial Surgeon's report, states that Dr. Ayres had written to correct the mistake, we should have argued that the figures given in the report were right and those in the table wrong, for we could not have supposed that a responsible officer like the Colonial Surgeon would have made such serious statements as those quoted above without verifying his figures. The preparation of the tables, on the other hand, would probably be left to a clerk; and a clerical error would not be very surprising. There is another reason which would have led us to the same conclusion. In the same issue of the Gazette the Registrar-General's returns are published, and these the China Mail has several times referred to as the most authoritative on the subject. To the Registrar-General's tables we refer, then. And what do we find? That the death rate amongst Europeans, exclusive of Portuguese, numbered 76, and those amongst the Portuguese 62, giving a total of 138, which agrees with the figures given by the Colonial Surgeon in his report, and varies from those given in the table attached to the report. In directing attention to the increased death rate amongst the European and Foreign community we have been careful not to draw conclusions beyond what were warranted by official statistics. If the official statistics and reports are not to be accepted as reliable it is very desirable that an intimation to that effect should be published in the next issue of the Gazette, for to publish officially exaggerated accounts of the mortality is calculated to exercise a very prejudicial influence on the interests of the colony.

FOOD SUPPLY IN TIME OF WAR.

In the great game of war the question of food supply has come to be one of the most important factors, for England at all events, many instances are on record of cities being starved out by an invading army, but the possibility of starving out a whole country by a hostile fleet is a condition of recent growth. It is in view of this possibility that Admiral Horner and other high authorities have urged the necessity for a largely increased fleet of cruisers for the adequate protection of the mercantile marine in time of war in order to prevent the cutting off of the country's food supply by the capture of grain vessels. The Straits Times, referring to this question, says:—"This Colony is in as bad condition. Singapore depends upon her neighbours for food supplies. A blockade would bring on a famine which no amount of bug-balls could avert. Taking a leaf out of Joseph's book and storing up grain as he did in Egypt for the evil day to come at some time or other, judging from the signs around, would seem to be the most feasible step. Sir FEEDERICK WELD took great in-

"PARNELLISM AND CRIME."

The charges preferred by the Times against the Parnellites are at last to be brought to trial before a Committee of the House of Commons, for there can be little doubt that Mr. W. H. Smith's motion mentioned in Reuter's telegram will be carried. It was on the 18th April, 1887, that the great London organ published a few similar A letter said to be signed by Mr. PARNELL, and dated a few days after the Frederick Park murders, excused his public condemnation of the crime and condemned if not approving the murder of Mr. BUNZEY. Few documents have created a greater sensation than this. The Frederick Park was reproduced in newspapers all over the world, and the question of whether it was genuine or a forgery has been hotly debated from that day to this. These of our readers who have forgotten the contents of the letter will be interested in reading it again:—

DEAR SIR—I am not surprised at your friend's anger, but I am not surprised that he demands that I should give up my place to him. To do that would be to give up my place to him, but you can tell him all and others concerned that, though I regret the accident of Lord E. Cavendish, I cannot refuse to admit that Burke got no rest.

You are at liberty to show him this, and others whom you can trust; but not my address know. It can write to the House of Commons—Yours very truly,

CHARLES S. PARNELL.

This is supposed to have been addressed to Mr. EGAN. The signature is not at the end of the letter, but on the fourth page, near the right hand corner. If the letter be a forgery, the conductors of the Times have either committed a most disgraceful crime, or allowed themselves to be duped in a manner scarcely less disgraceful. If, on the other hand, it be proved genuine, Mr. PARNELL stands convicted as an accessory in the crime of assassination.

The publication of the letter was the culmination of a series of startling articles on "Parnellism and Crime" which had appeared in the Times, and in which many charges of great gravity were advanced. As soon as the letter appeared, however, all interest centred in the question whether it was genuine or a forgery, the other charges will doubtless receive due attention. The statements made by the Times were repeated at that time by various members in the House of Commons and led to exciting scenes in that Assembly. Upon this the Times wrote:—

We have published, and we repeat the statement, that the present allies of the Gladstonians, the men whom Gladstone and his colleagues are attempting to pass laws and to rule the government in accordance with the wishes of the Liberal Unionists. Another Jeffries is experienced by the Government on the 19th June, on the question of police control as that time by various members in the House of Commons and led to exciting scenes in that assembly.
